Introduction

Program Director: Dioi Cruz

The Doctor of Missiology (DMiss) or Doctor of Intercultural Studies (DIS) is a combined academic and professional degree with the main purpose of equipping pastors, mission leaders/teachers, administrators, and other ministry professionals with advanced cross-cultural mission skills. It is accredited by the Adventist Accrediting Association (AAA).

The purpose of this degree program is to form culturally sensitive leaders and enhance their level of ability in pursuing the mission of the Church. This higher level of education strengthens the individual's spiritual life, sharpens missiological skills, equips leaders with the ability to relate theology to different cultural and social contexts, and prepares missionaries with mentoring abilities and refocused vision.

The DMiss/DIS is an In-Ministry program, and includes a significant research component. The degree is conferred only upon those who clearly demonstrate the ability to do independent research, and who have reached a high level of competency and expertise in their field of study. The program is cohort based and delivered as a blended program with on-site modules and online courses.

Addendum p. 193 para 3

Doctor of Missiology/Doctor of Intercultural Studies (DMiss/DIS) – Timeline and Limits

Updated:

Timeline and Limits

All application materials must be submitted to the Office of Admissions and Records no later than six months before the intended beginning of the program. Please contact the DMiss program director at dmiss@aiias.edu for information about the next starting date. The number of students who may enter the DMiss/DIS program in any given year is limited. Late applications are not guaranteed acceptance.

The DMiss/DIS is an In-Ministry based program and can be completed in approximately 4 years (but not less), if no remedial or pre-requisite courses are needed. Regular course work should be completed on time every year since a given concentration may not be offered again immediately. The applied research dissertation, including the defense and subsequent revisions, must be completed in three years or less from the time the coursework is finished. All degree requirements have to be completed within six years of initial registration.

Addendum p. 194 para 1

Doctor of Missiology/Doctor of Intercultural Studies (DMiss/DIS) – Admission Requirements

Insert:

Admission Requirements

1. A Master of Arts in Ministry (MA-Min), Master of Divinity (MDiv), a Master of Arts in Religion (MA-R), or an equivalent from an approved Seminary or University.
2. A minimum GPA of 3.33 on a four-point scale or equivalent.
3. A minimum of three years full-time cross-cultural ministry experience.
4. The following additional documents and data submitted to the Office of Admissions and Records:
   • Recommendations from the following, using the forms provided: an academic administrative officer or leader of the applicant's employing organization in the last five years, and the school from which the applicant received the graduate degree, if other than AIIAS.
   • Personal statement of approximately 1000 words explaining the student's purpose for seeking the DMiss/DIS degree, and his/her philosophical perspective and professional goals.
5. Demonstrated proficiency in English (see p. 20).
6. A Research Paper with an original (20-page minimum), publishable-quality article (or thesis summary) in the area of interest, which is to be reviewed and approved by the major department and program director. Detailed guidelines will be made available to the applicant as part of the enrollment package. In case the paper is not written in English, the original and a translated version need to be submitted.

Doctor of Missiology/Doctor of Intercultural Studies (DMiss/DIS) – Prerequisites
Remove:

Prerequisites

1. At least 15 credits in a mission related area.
2. A pass (of B or above) in a research writing course equivalent to GSEM 630.
3. ~~A copy of a masters thesis or a defended equivalent project must be submitted. If this prerequisite is missing, the student may be accepted on provisional status while registering for GSEM 611 (3 credits) and preparing an 80+ page thesis-equivalent. The thesis-equivalent shall be submitted for approval and will be assessed according to AIIAS masters thesis research standards.~~
4. An interview will take place with each candidate in order to assess their motivation for the program, readiness and capacity in the chosen area of specialization, needed skills, future potential denominational employment, as well as the usefulness to the mission of the Church. Candidates who do not pass the interview may be referred to other programs.

Doctor of Missiology/Doctor of Intercultural Studies (DMiss/DIS) – Degree Requirements
Updated List:

Degree Requirements

In order to complete the DMiss/DIS program, the following requirements must be met:

1. Complete a curriculum of 39 semester hours of coursework and 9 credits of applied research dissertation writing, bringing the total to 48 semester hours.

Area	Credits
Concentration	39
Dissertation	9
Total Program Credits	48

2. Maintain a cumulative GPA of 3.33 or above. Only grades of B- or above (or S) can apply toward the degree program. Students who accumulate three grades below B- (including U) are terminated from the program.
3. Some concentrations may require learning a foreign language. Students in these concentrations will be guided accordingly.
4. Submit an applied research dissertation topic request. Upon approval by the department, an advisor and an applied research dissertation committee will be appointed to give further guidance as needed.
5. Submit and defend a full proposal.
6. Write and successfully defend the applied research dissertation.
7. Submit five approved copies of the bound applied research dissertation to the Dean's Office at least one week before graduation (including one for the research advisor). Submit an electronic copy to the Library.

Doctor of Missiology/Doctor of Intercultural Studies (DMiss/DIS) – Curriculum
Updated:

Curriculum

The DMiss/DIS curriculum is designed as a blended program with on-site modules and online courses. Each course requires pre-session research and written assignments, post-session projects or papers, as well as participation in online group discussions with the cohort. Doctor of Missiology/Doctor of Intercultural Studies (DMiss/DIS) – Dissertation Committee
Updated:

Applied Research Dissertation Committee

The student's applied research dissertation committee is appointed by the Program Committee following the submission of an applied research dissertation topic request by the student and its subsequent approval by the Program Committee. The applied research dissertation committee consists of a chairperson, who becomes the student's research advisor, and two other members.

Doctor of Missiology/Doctor of Intercultural Studies (DMiss/DIS) – Dissertation Preparation
Updated:

Applied Research Dissertation Preparation

After the approval of the applied research dissertation topic, the student must complete the following applied research dissertation preparation steps:

1. A full applied research dissertation proposal should be submitted to the student's applied research dissertation committee for approval by the time of the third module, including an outline and a bibliography. Upon approval, a proposal approval form is to be signed by the applied research dissertation advisor and committee members, with copies given to the student, the advisor, and the program director.

2. The applied research dissertation will normally be approximately 200-225 pages in length. It should demonstrate the student's expertise and knowledge of the literature related to the topic, give evidence of clarity of logic and of student's ability to research a specific topic and report the results, following an appropriate methodology, at the same time making a significant contribution to thought and strategy in the chosen area of emphasis.

3. The candidate must submit six printed copies of the applied research dissertation, approved by the applied research dissertation editor, to the program director four weeks before the oral defense. An electronic version is also required.

Doctor of Missiology/Doctor of Intercultural Studies (DMiss/DIS) – Oral Defense
Updated:

Oral Defense

The oral defense of the student's applied research dissertation must adhere to the following stipulations:

1. The oral defense of the student's applied research dissertation normally cannot take place until the year after the fourth module has been completed.

2. The Applied Research Dissertation Defense Committee is composed of the student's committee and two examiners appointed by the Programs Committee. At least one of these examiners will be a person from outside the AIIAS Theological Seminary.

3. The oral defense is to be held no later than four weeks before the degree is to be conferred.

4. At least four of the five examiners must vote for acceptance of the applied research dissertation and the defense in order for the candidate to pass the oral defense. The vote of the committee falls into one of the following categories:
    • Acceptance of the applied research dissertation as presented
    • Acceptance of the applied research dissertation subject to revisions
    • Rejection

5. Any revisions voted by the defense committee shall be made under the supervision of the chairperson of the student's committee, who then recommends the applied research dissertation to the program director for conferral of the degree. Major revisions in the applied research dissertation or defense shall be reviewed and approved by the full defense committee. The Programs Committee recommends the candidate to the Seminary faculty for graduation.

6. If the applied research dissertation is rejected, the Programs Committee decides whether another applied research dissertation may be written and submitted. If the second applied research dissertation is also rejected, the candidate forfeits any possibility to finalize a DMiss/DIS degree.
